Art Unit: 1711

1. An appeal brief (Paper No. 13) has been filed on June 11, 2003.

2. Claims under appeal are 1-6.

MR 3. Rejection of claims 1-6 under 35 USC 103(a) (see item 5 in paper 7, and ^{papers} 9 and 12) is now withdrawn.

4. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter, which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claim 3 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claim 3 recites a thermoplastic elastomer as one having a soft segment composed of a polyether or polyester. This claim depends from claim 1. Claim 1 encompasses only a polyamide-based elastomer (not a polyetheramide or polyester amide). Hence claim 3 is indefinite in reciting polyether or polyester.

5. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

6. Claims 1 and 4-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Ishicawa et al (US 3,915,912).

Art Unit: 1711

Ishicawa discloses polyamide compositions containing a polyethylene glycol derivative (abstract). Polyethylene glycol is present at 0.5% by wt. or more (column 1, lines 51-57).

Claims 1 and 4-6 therefore lack novelty.

7. The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.

8. Claims 1 and 4-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Ishicawa et al (US 3,915,912).

Disclosure of Ishicawa is presented in short above. It would have been obvious to follow teachings of this patentee and arrive at claimed invention.

9. Claim 2 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Ishicawa et al (US 3,915,912) as applied to claim 1 above, and further in view of Takashige et al (US 5,716,696).

Ishicawa does not mention anything about soft segment of polyamide.

According to Takashige, polyamide elastomer DI-AMIDE-PAE has a soft segment such as a polyether component (column 3, lines 51-56). Incidentally, instant invention uses DI-AMIDE PAE (see specification page 10, line 11).

Therefore it would have been obvious that the polyamide of Ishicawa possesses a self-segment of polyether.

10. Claim 2 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Rajagopalan (US 6,121,384).

Art Unit: 1711

Rajagopalan discloses compositions for cover of golf ball. Such a composition comprises a polymer prepared from three monomer components (column 10, lines 59-67). Some other polymers, including block poly (ether-amide) copolymers can also be used (column 13, lines 13-15). One of the important properties of the composition is enhanced impact resistance (column 3, line 53; column 6, lines 66-67).

Rajagopalan does not mention the addition of glycol to the composition.

Disclosure of Ishicawa is presented earlier.

It would have been obvious to add the glycol (of Ishicawa) to the composition of Rajagopalan to obtain enhanced moldability.
